THE TEMPTATION OF ANTHONY

Anthony is an orphan who grew up at Scetis Monastery. For centuries, the monastery's monks and nuns have defended the land of Kema from sorcerers called Goetists. On his eighteenth birthday, Anthony enrolled as a novice, a monk in training. Because he grew up at the monastery, he outperforms almost all the other novices in combat training.

Syncletica is the artificial intelligence of Anthony's Schema. Schemas are fighting machines used by both Scetis Monastery and the Goetists. Syncletica has been in love with Anthony ever since he started training with her. By monitoring his thoughts, she figured out what his dream woman looks like. She has designed a virtual model of the dream woman's body and likes to think of it as the body that she would have if she were human.

Chapter ONE: Monkey Business

On the red, sunbaked plains of western Kema, two warriors faced each other. Each held a sword and shield and supported a shoulder-mounted aether cannon.

The warriors were fighting machines called Schemas. More than twice their pilots' height, they towered over the wiry desert vegetation.

One of the Schemas lunged forward, swinging his sword. The other, whose name was Syncletica, parried his blade with her own.

With a well-placed shove, she sent him reeling backward.

Inside her cockpit sat Anthony, a novice monk. He eyed the enemy Schema with a grimace.

He's telegraphing all his moves.

No sound came from Anthony's mouth, but Syncletica heard him through their mind-link.

This enemy is designed for your fellow novices, Master, she replied through the link. They aren't at the top of the class like you.

Like every human mind, Anthony's was clothed in two bodies: a visible body of flesh and a luminous body of aether.
